

3 Children Burn to Death at Beartown

Fire Occurs in Log Cabin Near Blue Ridge Summit; Mother and Neighbor Attempt Rescue

Victims, Ranging in Age From 7 Months to 3 Years, Trapped While Sleeping in Kitchen

[By the Associated Press]
Waynesboro, Pa., Feb. 1.—Three small children burned to death as they slept in the kitchen of their log cabin home at Beartown, in the Blue Ridge mountains, last night. The children were trapped in the kitchen and frantic efforts of their mother, Mrs. Ruth Anna Yohe, 22, and a neighbor, John Hampton, to extricate them were fruitless. The dead:

Stuart George Yohe, three; Howard Buze Yohe, two, and Martin Freddy Yohe, seven months. Mrs. Yohe had gone to the Hampton home about 100 yards from her own two-room cabin, to borrow kerosene. While there, Mrs. Hampton noticed flames in the Yohe dwelling, situated off the road, deep in the mountains.

The children's father was on his way home from work at the Waynesboro railroad shops at the time. He blamed a defective flue for the fire.

The Blue Ridge Summit fire company, located about one and one-half miles away, was unable to cope with the blaze when it arrived.

A fourth Yohe child, Gladys May, 4, was visiting her grandparents at Newburg, Cumberland county, when the tragedy occurred.

Both Mrs. Yohe and Hampton suffered burns of the face and hands, and the mother's hands were badly cut when she tried to enter the house.

Beartown is located a short distance north of the Sunshine Trail in Franklin county.

W. G. M'ADOO, 78, DIES; FORMER TREASURY HEAD

Heart Attack Fatal to Ex-Senator From California

WILLIAM GIBBS M'ADOO

[By the Associated Press]
Washington, Feb. 1.—William Gibbs M'Adoo, 78, World War Secretary of the Treasury and former senator from California, died about 10 a. m. today of a heart attack.

McAdoo was named chairman of the American Presidents Shipping lines shortly after he was defeated for renomination by Sheridan Downey in the 1938 California democratic primary. Downey succeeded him in the senate.

Wife at bedside

Mrs. McAdoo and a daughter, Mrs. Brice Clagett, of Washington, were with him at the time of his death. The former senator was stricken during the night at his hotel apartment and was removed to Garfield hospital where he died.

McAdoo was a colorful figure in Washington official and social circles for more than a quarter of a century.

In 1935, at the age of 72, McAdoo was married to Miss Doris Cross, 26-year-old public health nurse. This was his third marriage.

His first wife, Sarah Houston Fleming, died in 1912. She had borne him six children. Two years after her death he married Eleanor Randolph Wilson, daughter of President Woodrow Wilson, in whose cabinet he served as head of the treasury. Two daughters were born to them.

McAdoo stepped from the senate to the chairmanship of the Dollar Steamship Lines, Inc., which later was reorganized under government supervision into the American Presidents Lines. The common stock of the latter company is controlled by the Maritime Commission. His salary was $25,000 a year.

Antonescu Orders Execution Of Civilians With Firearms

[By the Associated Press]
Bucharest, Rumania, Feb. 1.—Premier General Ion Antonescu, explaining that his leniency in dealing with rebels had been misunderstood in some quarters, ordered the Army today to execute on the spot and without mercy any person found carrying firearms without authority.

Soldiers also were instructed to open fire on any groups attempting to hold meetings.

It was reported unofficially that German interests might take over factories of the wealthy Jewish munitions manufacturer, M. Malaxa, reported awaiting court martial.

Part of the Lupescu fortune changed hands again today.

When Magda Lupescu, red-haired friend of abdicated King Carol II, fled Rumania last September she left a "nest egg" for her brother, Constantine.

Police searching his premises found four million lei (the lei, unquoted now, formerly was worth a fraction of a cent) hidden in the walls and buried in the garden. It was turned over to a judge.

PRECIPITATION BELOW NORMAL FOR JANUARY

Lowest Temperature For Month 13 Degrees

The weather record for the month of January, which was completed Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, showed the month was slightly warmer than normal and was about a half inch short on precipitation in spite of snowfall which totaled 11.2 inches.

(About nine inches of snow are equal to one inch of precipitation as recorded in official weather reports.)

The month's lowest temperature was 13 degrees and was reached on January 14 and 30. The warmest day was the first day of the month when a high of 47 degrees was reached. The average daily maximum temperature was 38.9 degrees and the average daily low was 23.6 degrees. The month's average reading was 31.3 degrees which was 1.4 degrees below the normal January average.

Thursday of this week saw the sharpest change in weather conditions when there was a 24-degree change in 24 hours.

Rain and snow during the month totaled 2.66 inches or 82 inches below the month's average. The greatest amount of precipitation in any 24-hour period in the month occurred on January 24 when nearly three-fourths of an inch was measured.

Of the 31 days last month 12 were listed as clear, three partly cloudy and 16 cloudy. Measurable amounts of precipitation fell on 11 days.

Fog was noted on January 17 and 18 and sleet on January 24. Doctor Henry Stewart, local weather observer, estimated that Gettysburg received about 45 per cent of the available sunshine last month.

COOPERATIVE GETS POLES FOR ELECTRIC LINES

Substation To Be Erected Along Biglerville Road

With the arrival of seven carloads of southern pine poles from Florida and Georgia during the last two days, the way has been cleared for the beginning of electric line building operations by the Adams Electric Cooperative, Inc., in Adams county next week.

C. A. Cluck, McKnightstown, Cooperative manager, said today that the firm of Miller-Baxter, of Indianapolis, which holds a $230,000 contract for the construction of about 300 miles of main and spur power lines is expected to put a large crew to work here within the next few days.

To Build 300 Miles of Line
About 700 poles already are on hand. That number represents about one-tenth of the total number needed to build the 300 miles of lines.

Operations probably will begin at several points at the same time, but all may be in the vicinity of Gettysburg. Miles of line routes have been staked and cleared ready for the builders.

The Indianapolis firm also has been given a contract for the erection of a substation along the Biglerville road about two miles from here where the Cooperative will receive the electric current from the Metropolitan Edison company lines. The substation contract calls for an expenditure of about $7,000.

Buys Land for Substation
The Cooperative, which is a subsidiary of the Rural Electrification Administration at Washington, has bought two and a half acres from the John Galbraith estate property along the west side of the Biglerville road as the site for the substation which will become the distribution point for all of the Cooperative lines in the county.

The new lines will be energized as rapidly as possible. Electrical contractors have been busy for several months wiring farm homes and buildings.

Milton Junior Manus, 20, York Springs R. 2, was the operator of the car but escaped injury. The car was considerably damaged. No charges were laid by Private George J. Evanko of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police who investigated.

MITES SUNDAY FORM. A. GARVIN; EX-LEGISLATOR

Retired Railroader Also Started Daily Paper Here

M. A. GARVIN

Funeral services for Madison Alexander Garvin, 83, who died Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home at 20 Reynolds street, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bender funeral home with the Rev. D. Perry Bucke, pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist church, of which Mr. Garvin was a member, officiating.

Interment will be made in Evergreen cemetery. Friends may call at the Bender funeral home this evening after 7 o'clock.

Mr. Garvin was born March 9, 1857, in Amherst county, Virginia, a son of the late James Madison and Mary Elizabeth (Burks) Garvin.

Started Railroad Work at 19
For many years a railroader, Mr. Garvin took his first railroad job at the age of 19 years at Concord, Virginia, and continued to work on southern roads until he came to Gettysburg in 1884 to work on the new Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad.

His run was between Gettysburg and Carlisle until the Philadelphia and Reading took over the G. and H. Then he had the run from Gettysburg to Harrisburg until he retired in 1927 after 51 years as a railroader.

He was married January 27, 1880, to Emma Pauline Smoot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Smoot, of Virginia. They observed their 61st anniversary on Monday. Mr. Garvin had been confined to bed since December 26.

During the blizzard of 1865, Colonel Henry Watterson, Louisville editor, was snowbound with Mr. Garvin on the latter's train about three miles from Gettysburg. They struck up a friendship and the Garvins' youngest son was named Henry Watterson Garvin. Watterson gave the child a silver loving cup bearing the latter's initials.

Served in Legislature
Mr. Garvin was elected to the Pennsylvania legislature and served in the House of Representatives in 1901 and 1902. He founded Adams county's first daily newspaper, the "Progress," later changing the name to "The Gettysburg Times."

His widow and three children survive: Mrs. Thomas H. Doby, Bethlehem; Howard M. Garvin, Philadelphia, and Henry W. Garvin, Gettysburg. There are eight grandchildren also surviving.

A member of the local Methodist church for many years, Mr. Garvin filled various church offices, once having been superintendent of the Sunday school.

He was a member of the Good Samaritan lodge No. 336 of the Free and Accepted Masons; the Royal Arch chapter No. 266 and the Gettysburg Commandery No. 79 of the Knights Templar. He was a Shriner and belonged to the Zumbo Temple of Harrisburg.

Mr. Garvin belonged to the Harrisburg lodge of the Knights of Malta and was a member of Aerie 1562 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Rinehart, 69, formerly of Gettysburg, died suddenly Friday afternoon at 12:05 o'clock in the service station at the east edge of Littleton which he operated since March of last year when he went to Littleton from Gettysburg. The deceased was a son of the late Alfred and Matilda (Tawney) Rinehart and is survived by his widow, the former Mary Miller; two daughters, Mrs. Bernette Sherman, Harrisburg, and Mrs. Theron Basehoar, Littleton. There are seven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the J. W. Little and son funeral home in Littleton with the Rev. Dr. Theodore J. Schneider, pastor of the Redeemer church, officiating.

TEPELENI AREA UNDER CONTROL OF GREEK ARMY

Gains North of Klisura and on Coast Also Listed

[By the Associated Press]
Algiers, French North Africa, Feb. 1 (AP) via radio.—General Maxime Weygand appealed today to some half million French African soldiers under his command to stay out of the war, to accept the armistice with Germany as final, and to support the "national revolution" of Marshal Philippe Petain. "I appeal to you," he said, "not to leave the path of order and discipline, which would only mean the destruction of France and peril for all who take part in this undertaking."

Greek domination of the mountainous area around Tepeleni was reported today in dispatches to Athens from the front, while Greek sources said recent fascist attempts to seize the offensive in Albania must be regarded now as failures.

Actual occupation of Tepeleni is merely a matter of first mopping up isolated detachments, the dispatches said. Greek gains north of Klisura and the coastal sector and retreat of Italians towards Valona were also reported.

Axis spokesmen reported the counter-blockade sinking of seven merchant ships and the fascist high command noted bitter fighting in Libya, apparently among patrols, in which both Italians and British suffered "considerable losses."

Sinking of a 10,000-ton steamship from a British convoy in the Aegean sea by a torpedo-boat was announced by the Italian high command. It is through the Aegean that the British have been moving war supplies to the Greeks for use on the Albanian front.

"Notwithstanding violent reaction by escort vessels," the high command said, "all our units returned to their bases unharmed."

Italian forces marshalled in the Bengasi port area were threatened by two motorized British columns driving westward, one along the Mediterranean coastal road and the other striking inland across the "hump" of eastern Libya.

Observers, meanwhile, awaited reaction to General Charles de Gaulle's direct appeal to 500,000 French troops under General Maxime Weygand in French North Africa to throw off their "shameful" inertia and help complete "the conquest of Italian Libya."

There was speculation that General Weygand might answer the appeal from the commander of the "free French" forces in a broadcast from Algiers, reportedly scheduled for tonight. De Gaulle spoke last night over the London radio.

Germany apparently still is incensed over French Chief of State Petain's dismissal of Pierre Laval, who was his vice-premier. Laval has been reported in favor of active "collaboration" with Germany—that is, French military action against Britain on the side of the axis and the grant of French African bases to the axis for the war in the Mediterranean.

Both Petain and Weygand are said to oppose this.

Late Flashes

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) declared today that he "did not say in 1934 or at any other time that Nazi domination of Europe was inevitable"—a statement attributed to him yesterday by President Roosevelt, who said he had been told by the late William Dodd, former ambassador to Germany.

"This slanderous attack on me attributed to a dead man—is absolutely false," replied Wheeler.

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 1 (AP)—Several tons of bombs were reported today to have been dropped on Tripoli, capital of Italian Libya, last night by the British Royal Air Force.

Edward C. H. Schiebel, Brushtown, Draws 2 to 4 Years on 4 Charges in Fatality Probe

T. P. Thomas Gets 5 to 10-Year Term in Case Involving Girl, Aged 11; Admits Other Actions

Three men drew penitentiary sentences this morning in Adams county court and six drunken drivers were sent to the county jail as Judge W. C. Sheely disposed of 18 cases which came before him for sentence.

Edward C. H. Schiebel, near Brushtown, charged with four offenses as a result of police investigation of a fatal accident in Midway in December, drew sentences totaling a minimum of two and a maximum of four years in the county jail.

Schiebel was given one and a half to three years on a charge of involuntary manslaughter as the judge pointed out that every man who takes a drink and drives lays himself open to falling into a similar situation. Judge Sheely stated he hoped Schiebel's experience will help break up drunken driving which has come to be regarded lightly by many in spite of its potentially serious consequences.

Fined for Carrying Gun
Schiebel drew a sentence of from one and a half to three years on the drunken driving charge against him but the court directed that it should run concurrently with the manslaughter term. For hit-and-run driving, Schiebel was given from six months to a year to be served at the expiration of the other sentence.

For carrying a gun without a permit he was fined $100. He must pay the costs in all of the cases. Before passing sentence this morning the judge gave Schiebel an opportunity to tell the court exactly what happened at the scene of the accident. Schiebel stuck to his story that he was sober but did not know he had struck a man.

No Place in Society, Says Judge
With the observation that "civilized society has no place for a man who does the things you have done," Judge Sheely sent Theodore Pius Thomas, 61, Gettysburg, to the Eastern penitentiary for from five to 10 years on a serious charge involving an 11-year-old Gettysburg girl. Thomas admitted when pressed by the court this morning that he had engaged in such actions "with about three girls" for some time.

William H. Strausbaugh, 70, East Middle street, who had pleaded guilty on a similar serious charge, was given a pen term of from one and a half to three years. Each must pay a $5 fine and the costs of the cases.

The other penitentiary sentence meted out this morning went to Robert H. Becker, 73, Littlestown, who had pleaded guilty to two forgery charges and admitted previous jail terms for arson and forgery in other counties.

Drunken Drivers Sentenced
These drunken drivers were sent to jail this morning:

Hector Ingram, near Littlestown, convicted in court this week, 30 days in jail and a $100 fine, $50 of which will be refunded if the fine and costs are paid at the end of the jail term.

Louis C. Richards, Manchester, Maryland, 30 days and a $100 fine, $75 of which will be refunded if all is paid by the end of the jail term.

David V. Trimmer, Seven Stars, 30 days in jail dating from January 9 and a $100 fine, $75 of which will be refunded if the fine and costs are paid by the end of the jail sentence.

Charles W. Topper, New Oxford, 30 days in jail and a $100 fine, $75 of which will be returned if all is paid by the end of the jail term.

Punxsutawney Groundhog Club Expects to "Scoop" Forecast

Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP)—Members of the half-century-old Punxsutawney groundhog club gloated today over the prospect of a news "scoop" when the Punxsutawney groundhog makes its traditional appearance tomorrow.

Faithful to custom here, club officials will gather at Gobbler's Knob, a nearby hillside, and from a special vantage point observe the actions of the dependable harbinger of: (1) six more weeks of winter; (2) an early spring.

If the sun shines, and the groundhog hustles back into his hole for more sleep, the tipoff is forecast No. 1. If the day is overcast, and the furry prophet ends his winter's hibernation, forecast No. 2 is a good bet.

The "scoop" comes into the picture when the club makes immediate announcement of the muchheralded prediction at about 8 a. m. Over in eastern Pennsylvania, the Slumbering Groundhog lodge of Quarryville, Lancaster county, will jealously guard the forecast of its mascot until Monday night, when the lodge holds its annual banquet.

Because of the Sabbath, the Punxsutawney club has set its banquet back to Monday night, too, but the club felt it could hardly disappoint thousands of Pennsylvanians by delaying its fatal announcement 36 hours.

Being 11 years older than the Lancaster lodge, the Jefferson county club naturally claims its prediction holds a lot more weight. Last year, for instance, the Punxsutawney weather experts asserted the Quarryville lodge made the mistake of obtaining its forecast from "an odiferous animal with stripes on its back."

New York Importer's Son Reported Missing

Los Angeles, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Los Angeles Examiner said today Eugene Weiner, wealthy New York importer and estranged husband of actress Lillian Roth, had reported to police the disappearance of his 10-year-old son, Eugene, Jr.

The newspaper said Weiner had brought the boy from a military school to his apartment for the week-end and had tucked him, in bed last night, only to find him gone a short time later. Weiner was quoted as saying that from the appearance of the room the boy had left willingly.

Efforts to reach Weiner were unavailing early today. Police said they had no record of the case.

Miss Roth, former wife of New York Municipal Judge Ben Shalleck, recently sued for a divorce from Weiner, whom she married last year several weeks after charging him with assault, on a complaint that he struck her on the jaw at a New York night club. It was the third marriage for both Miss Roth and Weiner.

Gettysburg High School Wins 11th Straight; East Berlin Girls Take Lead

Maroons Tighten Loop Lead By Turning Back Trojans

Withstand Chambersburg Rally in Third Period to Win, 38-28, Before Throng

Before a crowd which packed every inch of available space in the gymnasium, the Gettysburg high school basketball team continued its unbeaten march by throttling Chambersburg high here Friday evening, 38-28.

The Maroons opened with a dazzling attack in the first quarter to take a commanding lead, withstood a rally by the Trojans in the third quarter which brought the score to dangerous quarters and then swept on to victory in the first period.

Excepting for the third period in which he tabbed three goals, Stewart, six-foot-five-inch center of the invaders, was held well in check by the Maroons and thereby lays the story of the victory. Without Stewart scoring on close shots from beneath the basket the Blue and White aggregation was just another ball team.

Every man in the Maroon lineup put up an excellent brand of ball. Ross Sachs nipped the scoring honors with nine points but was closely followed by team-mates. Only Sam Snyder, who played but a minute, failed to break into the scoring column.

Start Fast

Coach Forney's outfit started with a rush and completely bewildered the Chambersburg cagers. Sachs opened by bagging a long shot after a minute of play. Gipe missed a foul and then Plank netted a long toss from the side. Staley was fouled attempting to shoot and made good on the first of the two throws. Sachs landed another semi-long shot for the Maroons. Stewart and Cline tangled for a double foul and each made good on the toss. Staley rammed through a one-handed throw and then scored from beneath the cords to send the Maroons out in front 12-1. Hankey and Wingerd missed fouls and then Hankey made good on another free toss. Preiser looped the first of two foul tosses just before the period ended with Gettysburg leading 13-2.

Shortly after the second period opened Stewart netted the Trojans' first goal on a shot from beneath the cords. Cline missed a foul and then Cline and Stewart were taken out by their respective coaches. Gipe looped a foul and followed with a goal. Carter, subbing for Cline, sagged a free throw and Sachs netted a try from near mid-court. Carter cut the cords on a beautiful one-handed over-head stab to send the score to 18-7. Saunders flipped through a one-handed toss but Ray Staley matched it with a long chuck. Hankey connected on a short shot and the half ended 22-9.

Trojans Spurt

Chambersburg threw a scare into the Maroon camp in the third period when Stewart returned to the game and tallied a trio of shots. Stewart opened the period with a close toss and Hankey connected from the side of the court. Stewart tabbed a foul and two quick short heaves. Mahaffey cut the score to 24-17 with a free throw. Plank halted the rally with a side shot and then Ziegler landed a pair of pretty shots. Just before the period ended Carter sank a twin-pointer on a close attempt to bring the score to 28-21.

Sachs started the final round by bagging a foul. After missing a foul, Gipe stole a Maroon pass and converted it into a goal. Cline swept under the basket for a tally and then Mahaffey looped a long toss. Hankey caged the second of two foul tries. Plank and Sachs got away from their men to sink easy shots. Preiser tallied for the visitors to bring the score to 36-27. After Stewart missed a foul Gipe made good from the 15-foot mark. Just before the final whistle sounded Bream slipped away for another Maroon tally.

The victory was the eleventh straight for Gettysburg this season and increased its lead in the South Penn circuit to two full games.

Coach Russ Gilbert's scrub team dropped its second game of the season in the preliminary game to Chambersburg reserves, 22-16, after a thrilling battle. At half time the score stood 8-3 but Chambersburg, paced by Keltner, came through in the final minutes to win.

The Camp Hill High school basketball team, undefeated in West Shore scholastic league competition, extended its winning streak to eight games by tripping the Biglerville high club 43 to 31, Friday night at Camp Hill. The victory provided the Lions with a firmer grip on first place, giving them a lead of one and a half games over the second-place Lemoyne High entry, which was idle Friday.

The Lions took an early lead and were never headed. However, Biglerville for a time in the second period threatened to overcome the Camp Hill five. The score at half-time was 20 to 15. Bucky Harris, the league's leading scorer, led Camp Hill to its victory with nineteen points. George Houck, the league's second ranking scorer, sparked the Biglerville High attack with thirteen points.

A tie for third place in the girls' division was broken as Camp Hill high nosed out Biglerville high, 13 to 12. Three fouls by Jean Fisher, the last one coming in the final minute, provided Camp Hill with all its points in the final quarter, while Biglerville was being blanked. Fouls enabled the Camp Hill team to gain its victory, as it was outscored from the field, four to three.

An Evening Thought

The Words They Used

Representative Joe Martin (Chairman of the Republican National Committee)—“I want to be relieved as chairman as early as possible. I intend my resignation to be effective immediately.”

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

PICTURES

WE WILL never know just how much we owe to those who have inspired a love of beauty within us. Certainly many of those who have so blessed us died without ever realizing their great contribution. Many of them died hungry. A few of them lost their reason—perhaps because of a lack of appreciation as much as for a lack of food and encouragement.

Nevertheless we have great works of art upon which we can feast our eyes and be inspired. Most of our great galleries are free to anyone, and reproductions of the masterpiece of the world can be secured for a few cents.

Pictures in the home do more to furnish it than almost anything else. A room can be almost bare of furnishings, and yet glow with light, if there are but a few well-selected pictures on the wall.

I like to go to a hotel where pictures have been placed in the rooms. It makes them less lonely, and more homelike.

Pictures tell the story of many a struggle, many a discouraging life, and yet they tell the dream of the ones who created those pictures, as nothing else could. Not even words. You see something of a man's soul in his picture. In somewhat the way that you see it in his face. An artist puts something of himself into everything that he portrays upon canvas, or upon any other medium of expression.

All through college there hung before me that beautiful imaginative picture of Lorna Doone, Blackmore's heroine. Its beauty inspired me, though the print probably cost less than a dollar. I am sure that it inspired my later love of all art and beauty.

Picture stores in a community are valuable assets. They are like bookstores. They do so much to feed the mind and the hungry soul. There are no better investments than pictures—no matter how much, or little they may cost.

This I've never understood
Why are other men so good?

How is it my neighbor buys
Always such attractive ties

And the ones they sell to me
Are such awful things to see?

Why is it (I seek advice)
Other husbands are so nice?

Other husbands' suits are fine.
Merely worsted bags are mine.

Other men have poise and grace.
I go lumbering round the place.

Wonder can the reason be
Green is grass we merely see

And so plain the patches show

Your Income Tax

No. 6
PERSONAL EXEMPTIONS AND CREDIT FOR DEPENDENTS

Domestic relations enter into the making of an income tax return. This shows itself in the matter of personal exemptions. Too many taxpayers do not understand who is legally the head of a family, or what is a dependent. As a consequence, they overpay the government by not claiming their proper exemptions and credits. Of course, the audit of their returns discloses most of these errors, but not all of them, due to negligence or lack of understanding of the income tax law and regulations.

Care is taken in drafting the instructions for filling out the forms to make them simple and easily understood. The taxpayer should study these instructions before making out his or her return.

The head of a family, as defined by the income tax regulations, is one who, because of a legal or moral obligation, supports and maintains in one household a dependent individual, or individuals, closely connected with him by blood, marriage, or adoption. As such, he or she is entitled to a personal exemption of $2,000.

A credit of $400 is allowed for each dependent. A dependent is one under 18 years of age, or one who is physically or mentally defective and incapable of self-support. He need not live with nor be related to the taxpayer.

If husband and wife contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and it may not be divided between them. Likewise, if two members of a family contribute to the support of a dependent, the one who contributes more than one-half of the support may claim the credit.

Both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents must be pro-rated when the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

STATE MUST PUT UP $10 FOR EACH SEWING WOMAN

Or W.P.A. Will Let Work on Sewing Project Stop

[By the Associated Press]
Harrisburg, Feb. 1—A spokesman for the WPA said today Col. Philip Mathews has made “his final offer” and that sewing projects employing 12,000 women in Pennsylvania will close February 17 unless the state provides more money.

While a five-man legislative committee went ahead with an inquiry into the dispute between Mathews and Governor James, the WPA administrator left for a month's visit in Florida and said he would consider no business during that time.

Before leaving, however, he instructed Wilbur S. Gary, deputy administrator to accept new sewing projects if the state agreed to furnish $10 a month for each woman. If there is a surplus from the state's other contributions, he said, it would be applied to the sewing projects to bring down the cost.

James Offers $2.50 Each
James has repeatedly declared the state is paying more than its share of WPA work and will underwrite the sewing projects only for $2.50 a woman.

Liquor Board's Right to Appeal
As the Governor and his budget secretary Edward B. Logan put finishing touches on the estimate of money needed to run the commonwealth's affairs for the next two years, the liquor control board decided to ask the legislature to give it greater freedom in court actions.

Horace Siegelbaum, deputy attorney general, said the board will seek the right to appeal county court decisions to get state-wide application of the law. High court rulings have denied the board the right to appeal.

Backgrounds of Adams County

By B. F. MacPherson

No. 176—Jacob Kitzmiller and Dudley Digges

WE continue, from last week, our list of inscriptions from the stones marking the graves of the Kitzmiller (Kutzmiller or Kutzmiller) family in Christ Reformed cemetery.

1. “Ereal Kutzmiller/daughter of Icob and Ereal Kutzmiller, born May 15, 1799/Died July 20, 1802.”

Note: We admit defeat in trying to place this little girl in our rather sparsely hung Kitzmiller family tree. Icob might be Jacob Kitzmiller but we are not even sure of this. Perhaps some of our readers might be able to help us.

2. “Heinrich Kutzmiller, born 1780/Died 1801 den 16 Jenner.”

Note: A son of Johan Jacob Kutzmiller, soldier of the Revolution, and his wife, Elizabeth Kitzmiller.

3. “—? Kitzmiller/Died August 20, 1804/Aged 67 years, 10 months and 27 days.”

Note: As you can see it was impossible for us to decipher the first name of the person who lies buried under this stone. This being the case we have no idea of where or how he or she should be placed on the family tree.

This concludes the inscriptions from the marked graves of members of the Kitzmiller family whose graves are to be found in Christ Reformed cemetery.

We know full well that our notes on this family are very inadequate, and thus far we have been unable to remedy matters. The name is rather well known in the early history of the county, due to the prominence it attained when young Dudley Digges was killed in 1752.

In the following paragraphs we will give two versions of this incident. The first was taken from the “Histories of Adams and Cumberland Counties” published in 1886.

“Digges’ Choice dates back to October 14, 1727, when a grant of 10,000 acres was made to John Digges. On the advice of an Indian chief named ‘Tom,’ he located this grant in what is now Conowingo and Germany Townships, this county, and Heidelberg Township in York County. A survey was made in April, 1732, when 6,822 acres were laid off, a patent for which was issued May 25, 1738. In August, 1745, a resurvey was made, and 3,679 acres added to the former survey. This tract was four miles north of the temporary line between Pennsylvania and Maryland, surveyed in 1732. The subsequent disagreements led to the murder of Dudley Digges by Jacob Kitzmiller in February, 1752.”

Gen. Martin's State Salary
The Governor told his press conference he would confer Monday with Major General Edward Martin to determine whether the commander of Pennsylvania's National Guard would also retain his $10,000 a year post as adjutant general.

General Martin's duties at Indiantown Gap, James said, will become “increasingly difficult” when the Guard begins training.

SEVEN POINTS FOR DEBATE IN H. OF R. MONDAY

Minority Committee Report Offers “Constructive” Program

[By the Associated Press]
Washington, Feb. 1 — While the senate foreign relations committee carried forward its investigation of the war situation under pressure of the chairman's demand for speed, all was in readiness on the house side of the capitol for the start of full, dress debate on British aid Monday.

A majority report, issued Thursday, had recommended enactment of the bill but the minority proposed instead “a straightforward bill” which would grant Britain $2,000,000,000 worth of American credit with which to buy war supplies here.

“Keep Us Out of War” Proposals Listed

The house committee's minority set forth the following proposals which were described as making up a “constructive, democratic program to aid Britain and to keep us out of war:”

1. Grant Britain the two-billion credit, “requiring reasonable collateral security if available.”

2. Permit the sale of arms to Britain “only when our highest Army and Navy officers certify in writing such arms are not necessary for our national defense.”

3. Place a one-year limit on all extraordinary powers delegated by congress.

4. Prohibit disposal of any “vessels of the United States” without consent of congress.

5. Prohibit use of American ports for repairing belligerent ships. The minority said that “we must not bring the war to American ports.”

6. Prohibit use of American vessels “to transfer exports to belligerents.”

7. Prohibit “the conveying of merchantmen by our Navy.”

From Nearby Counties

Thomas C. Smyser, Jr., former York high school student, a boat-skipper's mate, first class, on the U.S.S. Concord was recently washed overboard and lost at sea, the Navy department announced. It was not disclosed where the Concord was cruising at the time of the accident.

Cumberland and Perry county residents are looking forward to an increase in tourists when the new Waggoner Gap highway is completed. The highway is being relocated over the mountains to provide a more picturesque view of the countryside and valley in that locality.

The Maryland Motor Club and the Automobile Club of Maryland are conducting a poll to determine the popularity of a suggestion recently made to issue one permanent license plate to a motorist and then to issue a yearly metal insert. The suggestion is being advanced as a substitute of the present plan, in use in all states, to issue new plates each year to motorists.

The manager of an automobile club in York has advanced, publicly, the query: “Where are York's three snow plows?” In a published statement in a York newspaper the club manager said that he had not been able to find anyone who had seen the city's three snow plows in action since the current snow storm started.

The 104th Observation Squadron of the Maryland National Guard will not report to Detrick Field, Frederick, for about ten days, a change in the plans have recently been made. The Squadron will first be mobilized at Baltimore before moving to Frederick for advanced work.

About 40 conscientious objectors to selective service in Maryland will be sent to a new “work” camp at Patapsco state park, where they will be required to serve their country for one year. Similar work camps are being established throughout the country where “objectors” will be sent for their year's training . . . in work rather than in defense.

John C. Riley, of Carlisle, one of the original rural mail carriers who started work when the rural free delivery system was instituted, has retired from service. He has completed 37 years as a rural carrier and regrets that he must leave the service “Because I like my job so much.”

Two river basins—the Amazon and the La Plata—comprise about three-fifths of Brazil's total area.

'Round About Town

Sergeant William A. Dillman probably has served longer in the United States Army, over 29 years, than any of the men in the long list of names published in The Times every Monday. His mother, Mrs. Ida Dillman, South Washington street, calls attention to the omission of Sergeant Dillman's name from earlier lists. The Times, with pleasure, hastens to make this addition to the honor list of men in the U. S. Services.

Mrs. Paul Phillips assisted Mrs. John Hewitt in canvassing a part of the northern section of town for the Warner hospital's annual food drive. Her name was omitted from the list published earlier this week in connection with the report on the drive.

It is estimated that from 800 to 1,000 more nurses will be needed from the state by March 1 to meet the nursing needs of Indiantown Gap and Camp Meade. Questionnaires are being sent to approximately 50,000 registered nurses living in the state to learn if they are active or inactive, what kind of nursing service they are prepared to render and if they will be available for service if needed, on either a full or part-time basis.

The Franklin Garment company, affiliate of the dress factory being operated in Gettysburg, is reported to have leased the Nelson Hosiery Mill building in Chambersburg. The company plans to employ between 150 and 175 persons within the early future.

The discussion of failure of motorists to file their applications for an operator's license before the designated deadline has brought to light a little-known practice in the handling of license applications through the mails.

If you are an automobile driver and change your address during a license period and the changed address appears on the envelope bearing your application form, the postal authorities are authorized to—and do—destroy the application.

In order to keep an accurate record of the place of residence of licensed drivers, the State prints on the envelope bearing the application for renewal of a driver's license instructions to the postal department to destroy the letter if not deliverable at the address on the envelope.

Inasmuch as the letter is the property of the state until it is delivered, post office officials comply with the order. It then becomes necessary for the applicant to file a new application showing his new address.

The Rural Legislator, a single-sheet publication issued by members of the general assembly, takes its stand with the Lincoln Highway association and promises cooperation “to the fullest possible extent” in the movement designed to win for the great east-west highway its rightful share of improvement funds.

The Legislator is awaiting the governor's budget message to learn what the chief executive proposes in the way of a highway program. It hints, however, that the governor's plan for improvement of the approaches to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will receive close scrutiny. “The highway approaches to our big cities begin out in the ‘sticks,’” says the Legislator. “In order to enter a city it is first necessary to get there. The Lincoln highway is one of the approaches to both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. It is, moreover, one (the state has quite a number) of Pennsylvania's premier scenic routes.”

After citing the investment of the commonwealth and individual citizens in the Lincoln highway and communities bordering it, the Legislator concedes the superhighway is all right, but “there is no sound reason why any of Pennsylvania's scenic routes should be neglected simply because federal agencies have made possible a toll road.”

When President Roosevelt signs a bill now before him, Representative Harry L. Haines, of the York-Adams-Franklin county district, will be permitted to designate an additional midshipman for entrance for the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

An act of congress passed four years ago, increased from four to five the number of youths which each member of congress might have at the academy. Funds were provided only for four of the five, but a special appropriation bill which went to the White House this week made provision for the additional appointee.

Because the new law will greatly enlarge the enrollment at Annapolis, each member of congress will be asked to make early designation. In most instances, that will be preceded by a competitive intelligence test in which any aspiring youth between the ages of 16 and 21 years may compete. The physical examination will be given at the academy prior to convening of the June class and will be restricted to boys nominated by the Congressmen.

The course runs four years. Graduates receive the degree of bachelor of science and an opportunity to enter the Navy as ensigns.

NARROW MARGIN FOR LEASE LEND IN COMMITTEE

Nye Accuses F.D.R. of “Smearing” Wheeler

[By the Associated Press]
Washington, Feb. 1—Approval of the British-aid bill in the senate foreign relations committee by a margin of at least three votes was forecast today by administration leaders, and Chairman George (D-Ga.) undertook to prevent any delay in committee consideration of the measure.

A canvass of members, it was reported, showed 13 “sure” votes for the legislation among the 23 committee members, eight votes “certain” to go against it and two presently considered “doubtful.”

F. D. R. Quotes Wheeler

Considerable interest was manifested in congressional circles, meanwhile, over a statement by President Roosevelt, at his press conference late yesterday, about Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), an outspoken critic of the British-aid bill.

Under persistent questioning by reporters, Mr. Roosevelt said he had been informed that Wheeler had expressed, in 1934 or 1935, the opinion that nazi domination of Europe was inevitable.

The information, Mr. Roosevelt said, came to him directly from the late William Dodd, former ambassador to Germany, who told him, the President continued, that he had heard Wheeler express the view at a dinner here.

The Word “Inevitable”

A reporter asked the President whether Wheeler favored nazi domination of Europe and the President replied with a question of his own: What does one do if he has made up his mind that something is inevitable? Inevitable, he added, is a pretty comprehensive word.

GUARD OFFICERS TOPREARECAMP AT INDIANTOWN

Maj. Gen. Martin's
Staff to Start Work
Monday

[By the Associated Press]
Harrisburg, Feb. 1—Commanding officers of Pennsylvania's National Guard will leave next Monday for Indiantown Gap to pave the way for the reception of thousands of troops at the $10,000,000 cantonment.

Major General Edward Martin, head of the commonwealth's National Guard, said "a dozen of us are going to Indiantown" to complete last minute details.

"It will be several weeks before construction work is finished," he said. "Several buildings haven't even been started yet. You'd be surprised, though, how quick they can put them together."

Martin said he had been assured that barracks to house the 28th Division would be completed by February 17 and those for the 104th Cavalry by March 10. There has been some delay, he added, in connection with plumbing and heating work and officials hoped for a period of good weather that would enable completion of work on connecting roads.

Rock Foundations Completed
Rock foundations have been completed on the highways, the General said, but the hard surface covering cannot be laid until weather improves.

Delays in construction of the huge project forced a change in original plans which called for training to begin early in January. The date was set back until the middle of February.

Cost of the cantonment was first set at $6,000,000 but General Martin said it would "be closer to $10,000,000 if not a little higher than that."

Arrangements have not yet been completed, the General said, to take care of men inducted under Selective Service but the camp will be able to accommodate seven or eight thousand of them in addition to approximately 12,000 guardsmen. Besides that, he said, there will be 76 officers and about 1,000 enlisted men of the post complement.

Some Training in South
Part of Pennsylvania's National Guard—the 160th and 190th Regiments—are already in training at Fort Shelby, Miss.

Leaving with Martin are these other members of the 28th Division Headquarters detachment:

Col. Benjamin C. Jones; Lt. Col. Fred H. Kelley; Major Paul M. Klenzie; Lt. Col. George W. Phillips; Major Wilbur Halbert; Lt. Col. Lucius M. Crumrine; Major Alfred H. Anderson; Col. Horace J. Inman; Lt. Col. Henry A. Reninger; Col. George J. Shoemaker; Lt. Col. Ralph L. Parkinson; Lt. Col. Robert S. Cowan; Master Sergeant, George P. Heath; Master Sergeant, Henry S. Stine; Staff Sergeant, Paul T. Bricker; Staff Sergeant, Charles A. Bohl; Staff Sergeant, Robert E. Laskowski; First Class Private, Walter W. Crawford; and these privates, Richard C. Bricker, Albert A. Agne, James W. Hamilton and Richard A. Biery.

Flashes of Life

BIG DIFFERENCE

Columbia, S. C.—In the future one cook at Fort Jackson will know the difference between beans and beef. A mess sergeant in making up the day's menu told the cook to prepare pork and beef sandwiches. When the soldiers sat down to their noon day meal they found pork and bean sandwiches. The cook's punishment? The mess sergeant made him eat nine of the sandwiches he had prepared by mistake.

NOT SO FAST

Richmond, Va.—The keeper of Riverview cemetery has appealed to hunters to please take a second look before shooting at the enormous elk peacefully grazing there. Twice recently rifle bullets have been sent crashing into the huge monument, placed in the cemetery last spring by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

MOUNTED POLICEMAN

Centralia, Ill.—A woman notified police that a bicycle she believed stolen had been in her front yard several days. Two policemen who answered the call found that the bicycle could not be carried in the patrol car, so they matched coins to see who would ride it back to headquarters. Patrolman Henry Carlyle lost. Just as he reached the station, the woman called again—"I've just discovered that bicycle belongs to one of my roomers. The same officers reached for coins. Carlyle lost again."

THAW NEEDED

Kansas City—William Schlegel halted his automobile and flagged a street car. He rolled a huge snowball off the tracks so it could pass. Climbing into his car, he looked back and saw two youths rolling the snowball on the track again. Schlegel sighed, drove on.

P.U.C. TO HEAR CUMBERLAND POWER DISPUTE

Beamish Charges Violation of Public Utility Law

Those at the Discussion
Attending Friday's discussion in Public Utility commission offices were the following: Chairman John Siggins, Richard J. Beamish and B. F. Morgal, of the commission; John S. Wise, Jr., president of the Pennsylvania Power and Light company; Daniel Teeter, counsel for the Cooperative; C. A. Cluck, of McKnightstown, manager for the Cooperative in the York, Adams, Cumberland and Franklin county area; Carleton Nau, assistant director of the division of applications and loans, Rural Electrification administration; and William C. Wise, assistant general counsel for the R.E.A., which has its offices in Washington.

President Wise (to differentiate from William Wise, of the R. E. A.) said that for the last twenty years "I have been a most enthusiastic exponent of rural electrification. We have close to 10,000 miles of rural lines in Pennsylvania."

Beamish asserted that the R.E.A. was formed so that farmers could be served in rural territories where through time and lack of finances the power companies were having difficulty in running lines.

Only Two Opposed, He Says
"We serve some 86,000 rural customers, about 2 per cent of the total," President Wise said.

"We have solicited that area in Cumberland county over and over again. Why do you want to come into it? You are coming through the most populous part of the territory. We are working there and I can't understand why you want to come in. We have been building this line since 1938 and were within two miles of connecting the two lines."

"We got permission to lay poles along the roads and we got authorized to cross all territory but those properties owned by R. Boyd McCullough and J. D. McCullough," he continued.

"They wouldn't give us permission so we did the legal thing—file bonds with the Cumberland County court. These bonds covered possible damages to the properties of the two men. We notified them Monday there would be a hearing on Thursday. We went to the hearing, filed the bonds which were approved and then went to work in the two properties. That afternoon the co-operative filed with D. A. Elias, our district manager, pre-emption papers. We had three customers to serve in the Big Spring area."

Explains Night Work
The power company president was asked why his men were working so late at night Thursday.

"Naturally when we go out to put up twenty poles we are going to finish the job. Several of the crews from Harrisburg and Carlisle were late in arriving and so the men decided to keep on working. Then the farmers stepped in and we were delayed considerably more."

He was asked whether the same rates as at present were asked of the farmers when the company started soliciting several years ago.

"No. We have worked out new rates with the P.U.C. and are billing down big minimums and making all rates the same."

The P. P. and L. now is charging a $2.75 minimum in the Cumberland county territory.

Recalls Sullivan Case

William Wise asserted that only once before had the R.E.A. served pre-emption proceedings on the Pennsylvania Power and Light company. He said the other time was in Sullivan county two years ago. That case and this one are strikingly alike, he said.

In Sullivan county "we were asked by farmers about service. They apparently hadn't been able to get any from the power company. There, as in this case, the power company became interested as soon as we moved in and also cut its rates. At that time Mr. Wise offered the same explanation in the same words he is offering now. He said it took time and money to service all those rural people. But he said an expansion program was coming up and lines would be stretched into more rural areas. But still in two years these people in Cumberland county couldn't get service without paying terrifically high prices so they came to us."

Called Community Meeting
Cluck took the floor and explained how Glenn Mains, Jr., had called him and told him that he had tried to get service and added that many people couldn't get the current because they couldn't afford the prices.

Commissioner Beamish cut in here and said "that is why the R.E.A. was organized—just to meet such conditions."

Cluck told the group that Mains reported the people called power company officials and asked them to attend a community meeting. No one came, Mains told Cluck. "That, he said, is why the farmers contacted the R.E.A.

"The farmers can't wait for their light forever," Beamish commented.

Teeter pointed out that the power company "forced the issue" or there wouldn't have been "this dispute Thursday night."

Building Duplicate Lines
President Wise said that the chief point is "to get power for the farmers," but why "build duplicate lines to do it?"

"These situations never come along until we come into your area," William Wise told the power company president.

Chairman Siggins finally got an opportunity to talk after several vain attempts.

"I didn't know anything about this until today. The R.E.A. was organized to serve people who couldn't afford the price the utilities have to charge. I don't think the R.E.A. wants to interfere with the Pennsylvania Power and Light company business."

"But it is not so good for both of you to be serving the same territory. The main thing is to get juice to the farmers."

Lines Already Started

"I don't want anything high-handed. This hasn't been talked out yet and wouldn't be if we were to stay here all night. I don't like things like last night's affair."

William Wise stated that "our engineers say that the nearest P. P. and L. line to the pre-empted area is 300 feet." President Wise contended his firm has lines in that territory.

Asked why his company insisted on going on with work after the land had been pre-empted, President Wise said that "our attorneys assured us we could legally complete our lines that already had been started. We had chartered all this land."

Teeter said that in rough figures the Cooperative has signed up some 700 out of 1000 prospective customers in the pre-empted area.

Digging Ends at 2 A. M.
The adjournment of the discussion about 6 p. m. indicated that there would be more hearings in the future. Representatives of the cooperative, R.E.A. and power company said they would be glad to talk over the dispute.

Thursday night's "battle of the post holes" in North Newton and West Pennsboro townships in Cumberland county came to a conclusion about 2 a. m. Friday when some of the 100 power company workers began filtering homeward. The forty farmers stayed at the scene until all of them had left.

Two power company crews returned to the scene Friday morning and were greeted by sixty farmers who were waiting for them with shovels. They were all set for a repetition of the night before's "shovel out, shovel in" friendly game.

Educational Program Sponsored By Forest, Waters Department

During the month of January the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters presented an educational program to the schools of Franklin and Adams counties.

The work was carried on from the district office located at Mont Alto, under the direction of R. R. Hought, district forester. The program consisted of moving pictures on fire prevention, logging and recreation in the state parks with special stress made on fire prevention. During the fire prevention film a short talk was presented on the fire problems in this district; placing emphasis on the necessity of care with fire in the woods, and the methods of combating them.

The lumbering picture showed, lumbering as carried on by the Central Pennsylvania Lumber company located at Sheffield. This picture was unique in that it showed the last big lumber operation in Pennsylvania, their daily cut for a ten-hour day being approximately 130,000 board feet.

State parks afford recreation for countless numbers of people and one reel was devoted to the various parks throughout the state.

The Pine Creek Gorge at the Leonard Harrison State park located in Tioga county has the distinction of being known as the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania. From the canyon rim to the bottom of the gorge is a sheer drop of approximately 1,000 feet.

Pine creek cuts its way along through the bottom of the gorge. The Department of Forests and Waters welcomes visitors to the many state parks and recreation areas, areas whose beauty may be destroyed by carelessness with fire in the woods.

Nearly 4,000 residents in this locality viewed the films.

The district forester would like to advise those who are interested in securing trees for planting this spring to secure their applications as soon as possible either from their district forester or the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters.

The following trees are available for spring distribution at the state nurseries:

White Pine	3 years

Forest Program Provides Cover and Food for Game

Harrisburg, Jan. 30—The State Forest tree nurseries not only furnish planting stock for reforestation purposes but also raise trees and plants especially adapted for game food for planting on state game land. G. Albert Stewart, Secretary of the Department of Forest and Waters, said today.

Secretary Stewart pointed out that there is a close relationship between the forests and wildlife and the present program of the Department is to cooperate with the State Game Commission and wildlife organizations to increase game food and wildlife shelters.

During the year 1940 the State Forest tree nurseries produced 200,000 game food trees and plants and a corresponding number for 1941 is planned. The nursery inventory shows that the number will be increased to 500,000 for the spring of 1942. The trees and plants include white mulberry, Japanese barberry, crabapple, bittersweet, dogwood, black cherry, thorny and pasture roses, wild grapes, deciduous holly, chinquapin and chestnut and Juneberry.

It has long been recognized that species of trees and shrubs which produce nuts are very important for the survival of wildlife. The State Forest stock survey shows that 50 per cent of the total number of living trees, 3 1/2 inches and over in diameter were nut-bearing species. Of this number 46 per cent were various kinds of oaks and 4 per cent consisted of beech, hickory, butternut and black walnuts.

There are 79 game refuges on the State Forests, comprising 59,348 acres. These refuges afford cover for wildlife and game to propagate without too much interference.

The timber stand improvement work which is being done in the State Forests by the CCC, under the direction of the Department of Forests and Waters, not only increases the growth and quality of the timber but also results in more game food. The low sprout growth, lopped branches with "fairy twigs," buds and fruit, are made available

Chapter 23
STICK 'EM UP!
"It looks threatening, David," Polly said. "Have you noticed?"
"Yes, but those clouds don't mean anything. They'll probably blow over."
"All right," Polly said. "Have a good time. Take a swim for me. I'll look for you around eight."
"Polly?"
"Yes, David?"
"That's nice."
"Love me?"
"What do you think?"
"Are you getting coy, or something—at this late day?"
"No, but the telephone is no place for confessions."
"I wanted to get up to see you last night," David said. "But I had to work too late. You know that Margo is going away tonight, or do you?"
"Yes, I know," said Polly. "She came in for a sport hat, one she saw in the window and thought looked like the Rue de la Paix."
"This ought to prove to you that—er—things are just the same, so far as you and I are concerned."
"Ought it?"
"Of course." Someone came into the office then, and David said, "I've got to ring off now, Polly. I'll be by at eight sharp."
At a little before one o'clock, his work for the day was done. The payroll was finished, the envelopes arranged alphabetically, and the bookkeeper all ready to go to the bank for the money.
"I'll have the two girls help me put the pay in the envelopes," he told David. "You can beat it now. And thanks a lot for helping me."
David lost no time. He hurried out and jumped into his car which he had parked near the office. He drove directly to the office which Warren McNeill now shared with Doctor Ben.
"Ready?" he called out as he walked in.
"No," said Warren. "That Mrs. Blue's about to have her eighth offspring. I've got to get out with her right away."
"Then you can't come out with Peter and me?"
"No, I can't—worse luck!" said Warren. "I'll try to drive out later, if I can make it. You two go ahead."
"Gosh, I'm sorry," said Warren. "So am I," said Warren. "But such is the life of a doctor. Babies must be born, you know."
"Why in heck couldn't she wait until Sunday? Sundays are better days for having babies than Saturdays. You know, the better the day, the better the baby, or something like that."
"I'll join you at the Inn, if the lady isn't too long with her eighth," he said. "After having had seven babies, she ought to know her stuff."
"Gosh, I'm sorry," said Warren. "To get into Doctor Ben's car, and David to get into his."
"So long, Warren, and good luck!" David called.
"Thanks!" said Warren. "I only hope she doesn't decide to make it quick."
"Don't say that!" David laughed. "Look at Doctor Daffoe!" He watched Warren drive off in a hurry, and then drove on home.
Peter was waiting for him.
"Doctor Warren couldn't go with us," David said. "He may be out later. Jump in, and let's hurry. There may be a storm, after all. Those clouds look most unfriendly."
"You told me to remind you to get some gas," said Peter. "I forgot to do it before," said David. "I forgot to tell me now!" said David. "Oh, well, I'll risk it. I'm not going to stop for gas now."
"Couldn't you drive faster?" Peter asked presently. "so's we can get there before the gas gives out?"
"Now, that," said David. "is what I call pure logic."
"What's logic, Cousin David?"
"Idiot!"
Before David could answer, a car passed them from the rear, going at high speed.

"Gee!" said Peter. "Did you see that?"
"I certainly did," said David. "It must be an elopement."
"Just look at her go!" said Peter. "Will they get a ticket?"
"If they're caught, yes," David said. "It wasn't any elopement, though. Peter went on. "I didn't see any lady. Just two men."
"They'll come to grief sooner or later," David predicted. "All speeders do." He pushed down on the accelerator. "I'll risk it, however. I don't like the look of those clouds."
The little car went rattling and bumping down the road. It was when they were nearing the spot where the dirt road up to the Inn branched off, that Peter touched David's arm.
"Look, Cousin David!" he cried. "There's a fire in the road."
David slowed down. He peered around the windshield. "Darned if it isn't!" he said. "Probably got lost off that speeding car that passed us."
"Want me to get out and get it?" Peter asked.
"No, I'll do it," David said. "It's a heavy-looking one, and you couldn't lift it." He jumped out. He walked forward, and stooped down to retrieve the lost property.
"Stick 'em up!" a gruff voice demanded.
David turned to see a man coming out of a heavy growth of bushes beside the road.
"Look out, Cousin David!" Peter screamed. "He's got a gun!"
He did have a gun, an evil-looking, stub-nosed thing, the sight of which made David feel weak in the knees.
"Stick 'em up!" the man repeated. "And keep 'em up." He then called out, "Come on out, Mike."
Another man came out of hiding. He carried a leather bag that appeared to be padlocked. He also carried a gun.
"That sure was a swell idea, Al!" he said. "That lost tire stunt."
"Yep," said the man called Mike. "They all fall for it. You keep an eye on the man. I'll take care of the kid."
"Don't you touch that boy!" David said.
Mike paid no attention. He walked over to the car in which Peter sat like one paralyzed.
"All right," he said. "Get out."
"I—I won't," said Peter.
"Says you," Mike reached out, caught Peter around the waist and lifted him like one paralyzed. The boy kicked and scratched and tried to bite. "Regular little wildcat!" he snapped. He sat Peter down near David, and then said to Al: "Come on, hop in!"
The man called Al ran forward. He jumped into the car. Mike got in beside him.
"So long," he called out. "Thanks for the lift!"
"Why, you—you—" David gasped. His little car disappeared in a cloud of dust.
"Gee, Cousin David!" said Peter. "There was a flash of lightning, a loud clap of thunder, and then a sudden rush of rain."
"Come on," David said. "We've got to get it for the Inn. We'll be soaked!"
"But, Cousin David!" Peter wailed, "we got to tell 'em about the car."
"We can't now," David said above the volume of rain that was increasing. "We've got to find shelter."
Peter tried to run, but stumbled. David caught him up, and holding him as best he could, went hurrying toward a short cut he knew—one that would get them to the Inn more quickly.
Marooned
By the time they reached their destination, the rain was coming down in torrents.
"Oh, gee," said Peter. "Your car's gone, and we'll never get any more swims."
David felt pretty low about the car himself, remembering that he hadn't been able to afford any inurance. But he was determined to keep his feelings to himself.

"Cheer up!" he managed to say. "When they find out what an old model it is, they'll probably bring it right back." He found his keys, and unlocked the front door. "Get inside!" he said.
"Gee, it's dark!" said Peter.
"I know," David said. "I'll light a candle." He closed the door with difficulty, as the wind was now blowing a gale. "Darned good thing Polly suggested keeping a supply out here."
Peter began to shiver. "Let's make a fire there in the fireplace," he said. "I'm cold."
David struck a match and lit two candles. He was standing in candle-holders upon the broad mantelpiece. He then touched another match to some rubbish that was piled in the fireplace.
"Here's some wood," said Peter. He handed David a few sticks that were lying nearby. "Gosh, I love to see a fire burning like that."
"You got off those wet clothes," David said, as he put the wood upon the burning rubbish. "I'll run upstairs and get some blankets."
"All right, Cousin David," Peter began unfastening his shoes. "But, I—He stopped and looked around the huge room at the odd-shaped shadows that were forming in the corner and upon the walls.
"But—I—"
"Are you afraid to have me leave you?" David asked. "I won't be gone but a few minutes—I'm pretty wet myself."
"No, I—I'm not afraid," Peter answered, swallowing hard.
"Don't look behind you," David said. "Keep your eyes on the fire, and then it'll be easier."
"Sure, Cousin David."
David caught up another candle, lit it from the fire, and hurried up the steps. In no time at all, he was back with an armful of blankets.
"These'll keep us warm while we dry our clothing," he said. He wrapped one of them about Peter, who had taken off his outer things.
"How's that?"
"Well," Peter said. "I kept looking into the fire like you told me to, Cousin David. I wasn't afraid any more."
"Lots of us get scared of shadows," David said, stripping to his shorts and wrapping a blanket about himself. "A lot of the things we think are going to harm us turn out to be nothing more than shadows, like those fantastic shapes you saw on the wall." He hung their shirts and trousers on some chairs drawn up close to the fire, and stood their shoes near them. "There! They'll dry in no time at all."

Winifred Galbraith, who was the only foreign member of Hunan University up to the Japanese invasion, and for 15 years has lived among the Chinese with sympathy and discernment. "In China Now" is less concerned with broad policies and sweeping statement, and more with presenting the people and their life under stress. It is full of incidents from daily life, all pointed and mostly well told. Its author believes in the integrity of the Chinese working class is the hope of the nation. (Morrow; $2.50)

"Great Britain Under Protection" is serious indeed. It is Frederic Benham's summary of the changes in the British Empire and the world brought about by the abandonment of her traditional free trade policy in 1931-32, its relation to British recovery in the period since, and its effect on world trade as well as British life. The book covers a large subject clearly and cleverly. (Macmillan; $2.50)

And for a complete and sometimes terrifying analysis of the diplomacy of the years 1939-40, we can turn to Frederic L. Schuman's "Night Over Europe." Dr. Schuman's close-knit, well-documented book tries to analyze coldly the diplomatic morass of those years without overlooking the human factors involved, and it succeeds better than one would expect any book to do when written so soon after the event. It is, also, easier reading than might seem likely. (Knopf; $3.50)

Scouts to Hear President

Besides all the Boy Scouts in the country—a membership of 1,500,000 right now—all America will have a opportunity to hear President Roosevelt, Honorary President; Walter W. Head (right), President, and Dr. James E. West (left), Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, mark the 31st anniversary of the Movement in the United States, over the NBC (Red), CBS and MBS networks, and many local stations not affiliated with the networks, on Saturday, February 8, at 7:30 p. m. EST; 6:30 CST; 5:30 MST and 4:30 PST.

College Presidents Elect Dr. F. P. Corson

Dr. Fred P. Corson, president of Dickinson college, was elected president of the Association of College Presidents at the annual meeting held in Harrisburg on Friday.

He succeeds Dr. Clement C. Williams, of Lehigh university, who was elected vice president. Dr. William P. Tolley, Allegheny college, was elected secretary, and Dr. Norman E. McClure, Ursinus college, treasurer. In addition to these officers, Dr. Levering Tyson, Muhlenberg college, was named to the executive board.

Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette college, and state director of Selective Service, told the group of more than fifty college presidents meeting in the Penn-Harris hotel that "sympathetic consideration" was being given college youth by the Military Training administration.

He urged the college presidents to request deferment for faculty members not easily replaced, but at the same time urged the college heads to make a survey of possible replacements for instructors in scientific and engineering subjects.

The Rev. Edward V. Stanford, president of Villanova college, told the association that while privately-endowed colleges flourished there will be no "bottleneck" in the defense program so far as higher education is concerned.

Dr. Harry W. Masters, president of Albright college, asserted that "perhaps it is not out of place to suggest that we might well consider adding to our Bill of Rights in our American constitution, a Bill of Duties. A creed to have a worthy mission, must prescribe duties—duties that command the asset of the mind and impel the will to action. That cause is most loved that asks for the greatest sacrifice."

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, gave the report for the public relations committee.

631 HERDS GET FIRST BANG'S DISEASE TEST

Harrisburg — In December 631 herds comprising 6,256 cattle underwent the initial test for Bang's disease according to John H. Light, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture. In those tests 16.5 per cent of the herd were found to be infected.

In addition to the initial tests the department retested a total of 1,233 herds comprising 13,421 cattle of which 19.8 per cent of the herds and 3.5 per cent of the cattle were infected.

Indemnities were paid on 163 purebred and 1,177 grade cattle amounting to $44,319.90 from State funds, and $33,411.86 from Federal funds.

It is also reported that during the past month 6,256 swine were vaccinated against hog cholera on 150 premises. Eleven premises were quarantined because of the presence of the disease.

Rites Held for Parker Myers

Six members of the York Springs town council acted as pallbearers at funeral services this afternoon for Parker H. Myers, 76-year-old retired rural mail carrier who died Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

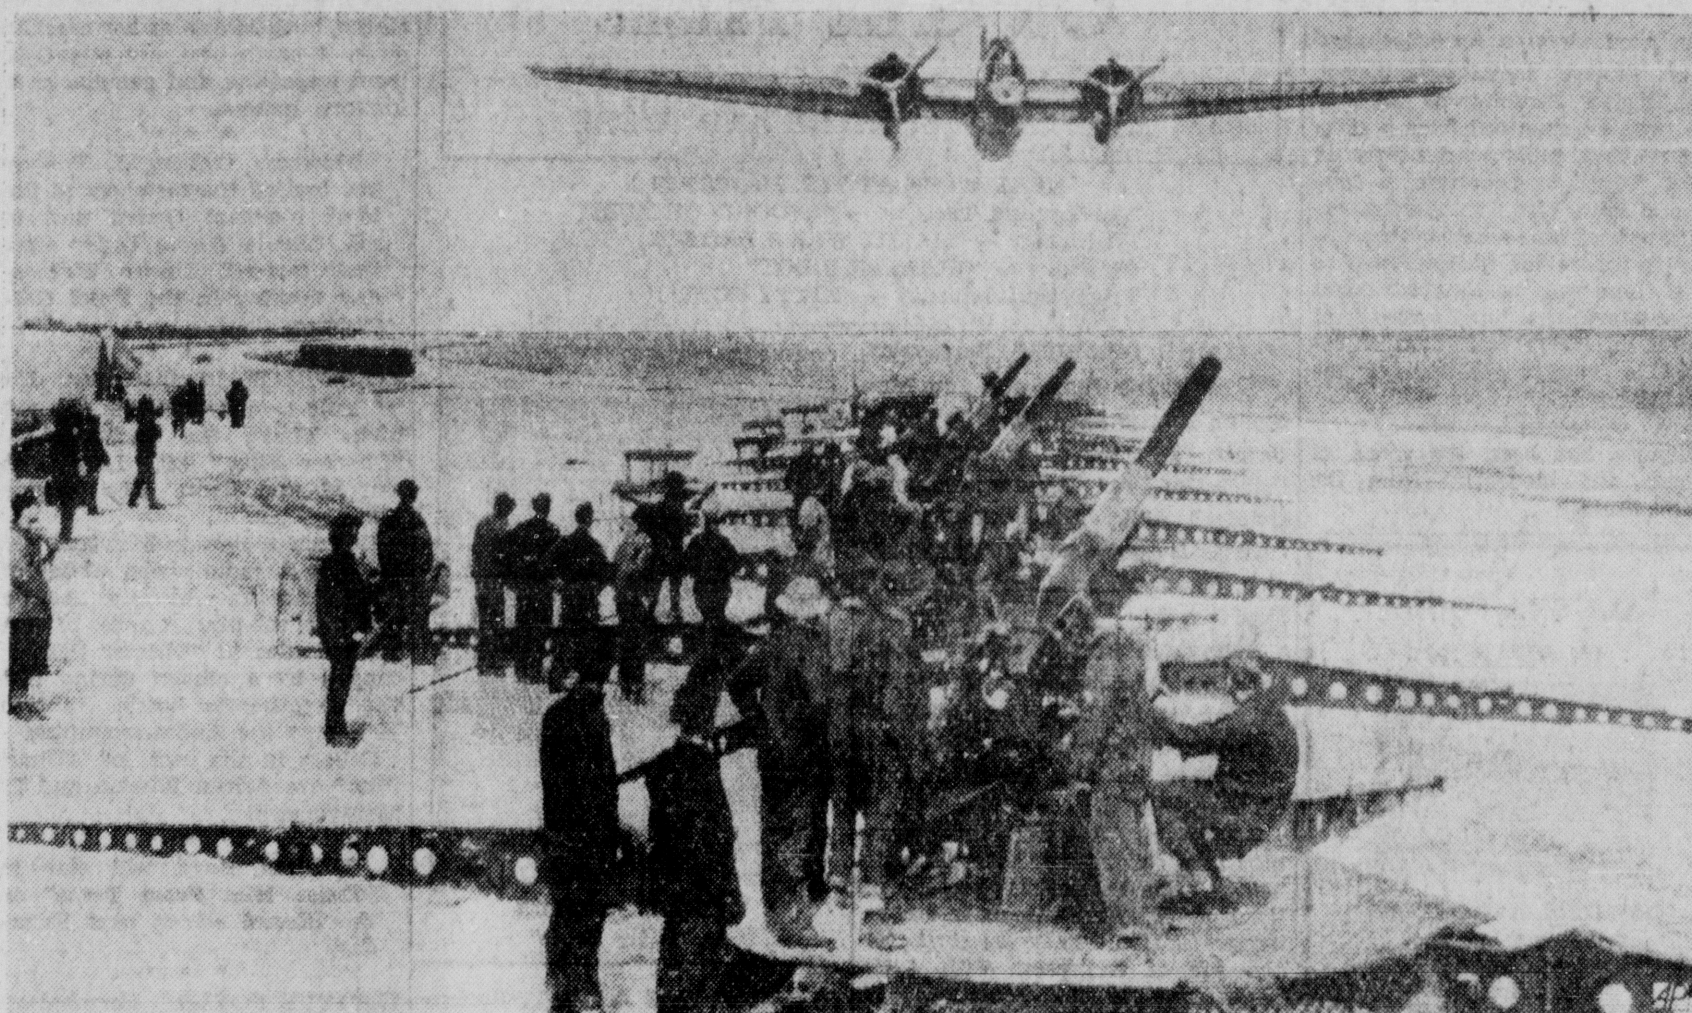

Services were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Myers residence. The Rev. H. E. Millard, pastor of the York Springs Methodist church, officiated. Interment was made in Sunnyside cemetery.

On Friday evening a long line of friends, neighbors and members of the official family of York Springs, called at the Myers home where the body lay in state.

Serving his third term as president of the York Springs town council, Mr. Myers generally was credited with being the "father" of the town's water system. The movement was instigated by Mr. Myers six years ago and residents of that borough give high praise to the deceased for his untiring efforts in securing the present adequate water system. The system was completed in January, 1939.

Since the inauguration of the movement to have the system in-

Anti-Aircraft Gunners Get a Sample of a Dive Attack

A giant Army plane that had been towing a sleeve target, object of the aim of this string of anti-aircraft gunners, swoops low over the guns to give the Massachusetts men a taste of what might happen if an enemy plane succeeded in evading their fire and dived down. This picture was made at the Indianola gun range at Camp Hulen, Palacios, Texas, where 12 three-inch guns are now in operation. Men manning them are from the first battalion, 211th coast artillery, anti-aircraft, from the vicinity of Boston.

stated Mr. Myers had served as chairman of the water committee and devoted considerable time with engineers and workmen in starting and completing the system.

Mr. Myers was a rural mail carrier for thirty years before retiring.

The pallbearers were L. Earl Miller, E. E. Nell, Paul Lehman, Nelson Guise, E. E. Wolf and Calvin Davis, members of the town council.

John Hoffman Rites Sunday

The funeral services for John George Henry Hoffman, New Oxford, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Hoffman home in New Oxford instead of this afternoon as was previously announced. There will be further services in the Reformed church at New Chester and interment will be made at New Chester.

3 SENTENCED TO PRISON TERMS

with carrying a gun without a permit, was fined $25 and ordered to pay the costs. Jail sentence was suspended for one year and he was placed on probation.

Two Burglary Terms

Elmer M. Lawver, and Dettas Carson, Biglerville, received sentences totaling six months to one year each on two charges of burglary and larceny. They must pay the costs and make restitution in all cases. Kermit Showers, Biglerville, charged with them with two counts of burglary and larceny, was given 60 days and ordered to pay the costs and make restitution.

Sentence Suspended

Willis F. Sterner, Straban township, charged with larceny, was given a suspended jail sentence and ordered to pay the costs. He must reimburse Ludwig Keller, Gettysburg R. 4, for the stolen property.

Donald B. Creager, Knoxville, Maryland, charged with theft, was sent to jail for a 60-day period dating from the time of his arrest on January 8. He must pay the costs and make restitution. The court told Creager he may apply for a parole at the end of the first 30 days.

John Hildebrand, 20, McSherrystown, charged with Joseph Weaver, of the same place, with assault and battery was placed under a suspended jail sentence for two years and placed on probation. The costs of the case must be paid within 30 days.

As Hildebrand turned away from the bar after receiving the sentence, Weaver held out his hand and offered to forget the whole matter. Hildebrand refused the hand and stalked toward his seat only to be stopped by the court. He was told to come back and shake Weaver's outstretched hand as a sign of truth of the statement to the court that he realized his error and was sorry.

Court Room Filled

The sentences were passed by Judge Sheely in consultation with Associate Judges John C. Wible and A. Dale Knouse. The court room was filled nearly to capacity this morning.

After the sentences were completed several hearings were to be taken up and the prospect was that a session of court will be held this afternoon.

Judge Sheely handed down a written opinion this morning in the case of the Landwehr Heating company vs. Dennis C. Heater on a petition to open judgment. The defendant's petition was dismissed in the order accompanying the opinion and the costs placed on the defendant.

There are at least 20 federal agencies concerned directly or indirectly with various phases of public health.

Twenty-nine states elect all their judges. Five states appoint them and 14 both appoint and elect.

KNOX 'WORRIED' U. S. WAR HELP MAY BE TOO LATE

"Peace Marchers" Gather at Capitol as Secretary Testifies

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Feb. 1—Secretary Knox testified today he was "tremendously worried" over whether the United States could furnish sufficient aid in time to save Great Britain.

Supporting the administration's aid-to-Britain legislation before the senate foreign relations committee, Knox was asked by Senator Nye (R-ND) whether the measure was designed "to underwrite a British victory."

"Not this bill," the witness replied, "but we do have an interest in seeing that Great Britain is not defeated."

"Can we act in time to save Britain if this awful crisis predicted for the near future comes to pass?" Nye asked.

"Peace Marchers" Gather

"Frankly, I don't know," the witness responded. "I'm tremendously worried."

While Knox testified in the marble-walled caucus room of the senate office building, a crowd of several hundred self-styled "peace marchers" gathered outside. Police kept most of them outside but permitted several to enter the building to talk to senators. They said they represented the "American peace mobilization."

In his questioning, Nye repeatedly sought information from Knox regarding potential naval strength of the axis powers should they win the war.

The Navy secretary said that if the axis controlled all of Europe it would have seven times America's shipbuilding capacity.

Knox declared, however, that he believed there was little danger of an immediate direct attack on American shores. "First they would have to establish bases," he said.

"Do you really believe there is danger?" Nye asked.

"I'm positive," the witness responded. "Do you think that if they (the axis) won, they would just let us alone?"

Nye said he did, because, he added, the axis powers would have to contend with disease, famine and troublesome minority groups at home.

"Did you ever hear of a conqueror quitting, especially when there still was some loot to be had?" Knox interposed.

Our Defense in Britain

When Nye asked whether there was any danger of an attack on the United States through Canada, the naval chief replied: "Any danger? There is always danger. A base in Newfoundland would put bombers in range of Detroit."

At one point, Knox said he believed this country's first line of defense "is the British navy and the British Isles."

Thus, he said under questioning, he believed it more expedient to send military equipment to Britain than to concentrate entirely on building up home defenses.

BERLIN'S REPLY

Berlin, Feb. 1 (AP)—Authorized sources answered U. S. Navy Secretary Frank Knox's allegations that Germany might use gas against England by referring today to Adolf Hitler's statement at the beginning of the war that he would use only such weapons as were used by the enemy. (Knox, testifying before the U. S. senate foreign relations committee yesterday, said "we fear" the Germans are contemplating the use of gas in an "imminent" invasion of

W. G. M'ADOO, 78, DIES; FORMER TREASURY HEAD

Heart Attack Fatal to Ex-Senator From California

Franklin D. Roosevelt during the 1932 democratic national convention, when he announced that the California delegation would swing from John Nance Garner to Roosevelt.

He first won national fame as the man who organized, financed and administered the company which built the first tunnels under the Hudson river.

As secretary of the treasury he helped frame the federal reserve act.

President "Deeply Shocked"

Notified of McAdoo's death, President Roosevelt said:

"I am deeply shocked to learn of the sudden death today of one of my oldest friends, William Gibbs McAdoo. I have known him personally since 1912. It was only last Wednesday that he came to see me."

"I join with the entire country in mourning him as one who has given many years of faithful service to the nation. My personal affection for him grew with the years."

The press conference inquiry about the government's attitude toward the Ford Motor Co. followed disclosure that the War Department had denied the Detroit firm a $10,000,000 truck order because Ford took exception to labor clauses in the proposed contract.

As if in answer to the War Department's move, Henry Ford promptly offered to build defense materials at cost. "If other manufacturers will do the same."

In a statement telephoned to his Detroit office from his Georgia winter home, Ford said:

"There ought not to be any quibbling on defense contracts. All companies ought to do what the government wants them to do without making profit. Nobody should make any profit on defense production anyway. It's profit in the manufacture of war materials that causes war."

BUTLER ACQUITTED

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 1 (AP)—Joseph Spill, 31-year-old negro butler accused on a serious charge by his pretty, sociable employer, Mrs. Eleanor Strubing of Greenwich, won an acquittal from a mixed jury that deliberated nearly 13 hours. Urged by the state to convict and spare Mrs. Strubing "shame and disgrace" and asked by the defense to ignore the consequences to her if there was "reasonable" doubt of her story, the jury retired at 11:12 a. m. (EST) yesterday. It reported its verdict six minutes before midnight.

AMUSEMENTS: HERE AND THERE

NEXT WEEK AT THE MAJESTIC
Monday and Tuesday — "SECOND CHORUS"
Wednesday — "MAISIE WAS A LADY"
Thursday — "CHARTER PILOT"
Friday and Saturday — "KITTY FOYLE"

"SECOND CHORUS." Screenplay by Elaine Ryan and Ian McClellan Hunter from story by Frank Cavett. Directed by H. C. Potter. Principals: Fred Astaire, Paulette Goddard, Artie Shaw and band, Charles Butterworth, Burgess Meredith, Frank Melton, Jimmy Conlon, Don Brodie.

Everything in this light musical show is as you expect it—and probably as you like it too—except Burgess Meredith, who makes news by turning in his first screen comedy performance.

Astaire and Meredith are partners in a college orchestra, fittingly named "The Perennials" because of the boys' longtime success in escaping graduation. They are rivals for the job of trumpeter with Artie Shaw, and for the affections of Paulette.

Paulette gets the boys an audition, which each helps the other to muf, and about this time Butterworth, as a music-minded millionaire with a hot mandolin, shows up to round out the plot as backer of a Shaw concert. The sunshine-spreaders get their feet in the way here also, but retrieve in time to permit a finale in which Astaire shows how to lead a band while dancing.

Astaire dances less than usual, but gives more of his talent for comedy and song, and Paulette, at once peppy and decorative, manages skillfully in the one dance duet she shares with the star. Meredith's hooligan comedy familiar on the stage but new to the screen which has had him principally in poetic introspections, is as successful as the frozen-faced humor of Butterworth. Spirited playing by everyone concerned makes "Second Chorus" a pleasant addition to the new crop of musicals. Novelty: the "me first" attitude of everybody concerned, with the usual phoney self-sacrifice angles missing.

"Gone With the Wind" will be shown at the Majestic theatre on Friday and Saturday, February 21 and 22. There will be continuous shows on both days, starting at noon.

GINGER ROGERS
As "Kitty Foyle"

"MAISIE WAS A LADY." Screenplay by Betty Reinhardt and Mary C. McCall, jr. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Principals: Ann Sothern, Lew Ayres, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Joan Perry, Paul Cavanaugh, Edward Ashley.

This new chapter in the adventures of the amazing Maisie may fill the Maisie-fancier with forebodings. It wouldn't have mattered so much after "Congo Maisie," but after this one it would be a shame to see Maisie join the "Thin Man" and "The Jones Family" in the limbo of finished series.

At the end, here, our wisecracking, bighearted Maisie is in a clinch with Ayres, they're talking wedding bells, and all, in short, seems lost—for the essence of Maisie is foot-loose, romantic adventure.

In this episode Maisie begins as a carnival's headless woman, progresses by quick stages to "maiding" in the vast palace of drinking playboy Bob. In quicker time she's resisting Bob's sister's no-account fiancé (Ashley) and trying to mind her own business. Then she sees what a mess the family's in. What with money to burn, no mother, and a father who never finds time to come home from his wanderings, Bob and Abby (O'Sullivan) are in a bad way. All they have is a delightful old retainer (Smith) and Maisie, who keeps quiet as long as she can (which isn't long if you know Maisie) and then lets loose.

It's a pleasant yarn. Cinderella-tinted with Maisie at her crackling, down-to-earth best, and Miss O'Sullivan appealing and genuine as the lovelorn heiress.

Manager, Sydney J. Poppay has invited the members of the local National Guard unit to see "Maisie Was a Lady" after their farewell dinner Wednesday evening in the Hotel Gettysburg.

SABOTAGE in the skies. Five-mile-a-minute thrills five miles high. That's the background of "Charter Pilot," with Lloyd Nolan starred and Lynn Bari opposite him.

Nolan's a daredevil aviator and Lynn is a radio queen whose program dramatizes his sensational exploits on the air. A series of thrilling episodes in "Charter Pilot" is capped by a climax during which the sweethearts battle saboteurs high over the Andes mountains.

Others in the cast of "Charter Pilot" are Arleen Whelan and Geo. Montgomery.

William Boyd will star in "Three Men From Texas" on the Strand screen next Saturday.

"KITTY FOYLE." Screenplay by Dalton Trumbo from Christopher Morley's novel. Directed by Sam Wood. Principals: Ginger Rogers, Dennis Morgan, James Craig, Eduardo Ciannelli, Ernest Cossart.

This worthy filming of the best-selling story of a white-collar girl marks a new step in Ginger's progress toward recognition as an actress. She's Kitty, first and last, in close-up and long-shot, in her teens when she argues with Pop about Cinderellas and Princes, in her twenties when she carries on pluckily while carrying the torch for her prince Wyn Stafford, the charming weakling from Philadelphia's Main Line. Seeing Ginger now, it's hard to believe she's the same girl we used to know only as an ingenue, and later as the light-footed partner of a hooper named Astaire. She's an actress.

Kitty (if you haven't read the book) was a game kid with a crush on handsome Wyn, who had a family. She loved him no matter what, and he loved her too, but not enough. After a brief-lived marriage (a movie sop to meet censorship) Kitty went right on working, and was about to marry a good guy (Craig) when Wyn showed up again, ready to leave his wife and child and inviting Kitty to come along.

The picture opens and closes with this development, tells its tale in retrospective sequences. Although there is little doubt as to Kitty's ultimate choice, the picture carries along smoothly and interestingly, constitutes as sound and moving a picture of a Kitty Foyle's mind and heart as did the book and scores a ten-strike for humanness.

Morgan (as Stafford) is the same handsome lad who was released by Metro, to its present chagrin, for want of acting ability. Craig, a comparative newcomer, shows Cary Grant-ish promise.

MOVIES coming to the Majestic during the week of February 10 follow:

Monday and Tuesday — "The Thief of Bagdad," with Conrad Veidt, Sabu and June Duprez.

Wednesday — "Li'l Abner."

Thursday — "The Lady With Red Hair," with Miriam Hopkins.

Friday and Saturday — "Flight Command," with Robert Taylor and Ruth Hussey.

CAN DRAW OUT

FORTUNE ANY TIME

Oklahoma City, Okla. (AP) — John Burnett, special agent for the Rock Island railroad, has a revolver he is almost afraid to shoot — because the diamonds might fall out.

Besides being diamond-studded the gun is gold and silver plated and is engraved with Burnett's fingerprints and signature; his picture and a picture of his horse. Eight California $1 gold pieces, dated 1890, also are embedded in it, along with lodge and railroad emblems. To top it off it has a ruby-eyed, bullhead pearl handle.

FIGHTS TEXAS WAY

OR NOT AT ALL

Topeka, Kas. (AP) — The tall Texan walked into the Army recruiting office and said he was a bronc breaker.

"If I join your cavalry can I bring along my own boots and saddles?" he inquired.

"No," said the corporal in charge. "But I can't ride them Army saddles," the Texan explained. "The corporal didn't waiver: 'Sorry, but that's the way it is.'"

"They'll have to draft me, then," and the weather-tanned bronc buster stalked out.

HEH, HEH

Spartanburg, S. C. (AP) — Patrolman Hugh Childers jokingly told graduates of his School of Safe Driving that fitting gifts for teacher would be a cigar from each boy and a kiss from each girl. Came graduation and each girl dropped a candy kiss into teacher's hat. Childers didn't get the cigars either.
